Put On The Noise is a collection of poems lovingly dedicated to Dr. Dennis Karambelas from his wife and daughters. Dennis lived for only three months following his diagnosis of cancer. Crafted with honesty and occasional humor, the poems seek to capture the essence of what it means to be a family through love, loss and grieving, and should resonate with readers who have lost loved ones. Divided into two parts, titled Loss and

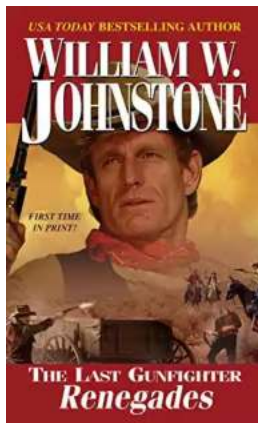

Leap, the book confronts head-on the myriad emotions one experiences in the aftermath of death and the resilience of family as its members work through grief and find closure together.
