From the bestselling author of the Callahan Security Series.

Meet Nick Taggart of the US Coast Guard's TEAM RECON. As in reconstructed. As in broken and needs fixing.

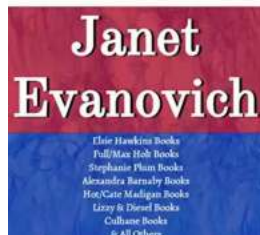

Nick was injured on his last assignment for the Coast Guard. Now, too hurt to return to his former position but not wounded enough to be benched, he's assigned as the new team leader of the Coast Guard's drug interdiction unit in Panama, a motley crew of damaged men thrown together to work "reconnaissance."

The Tarchuarani, an indigenous people of South America and one of the last untouched civilizations left on Earth, have started dying at an alarming rate. A chance meeting with her old boss sets Dr. Carolina Alvarez on a dangerous mission to deliver a much-needed vaccine to the Tarchuarani. Her failure would mean the sure extinction of the tribe, but no sooner has Carolina stepped foot in Central America when a cartel steals her medicine and she has to turn to Nick for help, a man she once loved and had stitched back together.

Nick should have realized from the instant Carolina walked back into his life things would not go according to plan. He still harbors resentment against Carolina, which is clouding his vision...and decisions. Now they are on the trail of the missing vaccine, and there is no shortage of people who want them dead.
